List of Books:

1. Snow Crash - Snow Crash tells the story of Hiro Protagonist, a katana-wielding hacker who jumps back and forth between dystopian Los Angeles and a virtual world called the Metaverse. This book is extremely goofy with on-the-nose nerd humor. The fact that the main character's name is Hiro Protagonist tells you all you need to know[Stephenson, 1992].
2. Neuromancer - Neuromancer follows its protagonist Case, an unemployed computer hacker who is hired by a mysterious new employer called Armitage. He's teamed with Molly, a cyborg, and Peter Riviera, a thief and illusionist, to carry out a series of crimes that set the stage for the group's ultimate purpose[Gibson, 1984].
3. The Grand Budapest Hotel [Anderson, 2021] - In 1975, in the fictional French town of Ennui-sur-Blasé (from French, literally, "boredom on apathetic"), Arthur Howitzer Jr., the editor of the magazine The French Dispatch, dies suddenly of a heart attack. According to the wishes expressed in his will, publication of the magazine is immediately suspended following one final farewell issue, in which four articles are published, along with an obituary. Sounds boring, but I found it very fun to watch as there are lots of intertwining stories. - [Anderson, 2021]
